This book explores the concept of liminality in the representation of women in eighteenth and nineteenth century literature as well as in contemporary rewritings such as novels, films, television shows, videogames, and graphic novels. In particular, the volume focuses on vampires, prostitutes, quixotes, and detectives as examples of new women who inhabit the margins of society and populate its narratives. Therefore, it places together for the first time four important liminal identities while it explores a relevant corpus that comprises four centuries and several countries. Its diachronic, transnational, and comparative approach emphasizes the representation across time and space of female sexuality, gender, violence, and women's rights, also employing a liminal stance in its literary analysis. Facing the past in order to understand the present by underlining the dialogue between past and present, this monograph contributes to contemporary debates on the representation of women and the construction of femininity as opposed to hegemonic masculinity. For it exposes the line of thought that has brought us to the present moment, hence challenging assumed stereotypes and narratives. In addition, by using popular narratives and media, the present work highlights the value of literature, films, or alternative forms of storytelling to understand how women's place in society, their voice, and their presence have been and are still negotiated in spaces of visibility, agency, and power.

This collection of essays expands our understanding and appreciation of the body of work by established female authors of Spanish crime fiction series by analyzing recent narratives that, in some cases, contribute in novel ways to the ongoing reformulation of the genre and in others, provide readers with a temporary hiatus from it.
